WOULD WIPE US OUT.

EX-SECRETARY of the Treasury George S. Boutwell of Mussachusetts is worrying himself in his old age, and probable senility, over the fact that small States are allowed the same representation in the national Senate as the large ones. In an article that he contributes to the Philadelphia Record, the venerable gentleman wails piteously over the "Injustice," and suggests as a remedy, not the reduction of representation, but the wiping out of Nevada and two or three other western States which do not come up to his requirement in the matter of population. His proposition is a constitutional amendment, requiring population equal to one four-hundredth part of the aggregate population of the country as a prerequisite to Statehood, and that those already admitted and which do not come up to that standard shall cease to be States and shall be returned to a territorial condition. As Mr. Boutwell belongs to a party which believes that the constitution does not follow the flag, and with a Supreme Court possessing such remarkable powers and resources, it is perhaps a little strange that he could not find some shorter cut by which the blotting out of a number of States from our national banner could be accomplished.

But jesting aside, it is a matter of wonderment that such a proposition should be seriously entertained by an ex-cabinet officer who was in active politics during the Civil war, and who strongly advocated the admission of Nevada as a "war necessity" to assure the adoption of a constitutional amendment which was an essential to the successful presecution of the war, and which was the greatest factor, next to army and navy, in shortening its duration. Has the old man also forgotten how greatly the nation, during those troublous times. was indebted for the maintenance of its credit to Nevada, whose unprecedented output of gold and silver bullion was its principal and almost its only pledge for its securities at home and abroad, and without which its financial condition would have been almost as deplorable as that of the Confederacy itself? Nevada has more than ten times earned her place of representation on the blue of the national ensign, with all of the rights and privileges attending its placement thereon, and its removal by others would constitute almost as great an act of treason as a declaration of secession adopted by our own legislature in joint convention assembled.

we spoken more particularly of Nevad this connection because it was the 'especially "horrible example" in illustration of the "injustice" of population disproportionment of representation in the upper house of Congress, and because our little commonwealth, although the least populous of any in the Union, has contributed ten times more solid wealth to the nation than some others of more than ten times its number of inhabitants.

The question of representation was long and carefully considered by the framers of our federal constitution, and the equality of States in the one branch was considered essential to the protection of the rights of the smaller ones, while the rights of the larger ones were amply provided for by representation proportioned upon population in the other branch. The system has worked well and the reasons for its adoption are none the less cogent for its continuance. But there is a way by which the objections of the ancient ex-statesman of Massachusetts could be overcome. Not by wiping out, but by building up States. All of the offending eye-sores are located in the arid and semi-arid sections, which only need the one element to render them so productive and attractive that the fourhundredth ratio would be exceeded in less than half a decade after its procurance. Doubtless the ex-secretary is an enthusiastic supporter of the administration's insular policy. If old age, has made him far sighted, let him put on shorter range spectacles which will perhaps enable him to discern a method that will settle the question of population by legislative and executive action, and without resorting to the round-about process of constitutional change.

THE PENDING COURT OF INQUIRY.

THE immediate cause of the Schley Court of Inquiry was the publication of a volume, entitled "Naval History," written by an obscure government employee, a sort of navy yard flunky, named Maclay. This obscure author had compiled some volumes of the early history of the American navy which had been given a place as text books in the Navel Academy. In the last volume, in dealing with the Spanish war, he applied to Admiral Schley the words "catiff," "coward" and a few other select epithets, which no person of decency, to say nothing of brains, would use in connection with an officer of the rank of the officer assailed. A protest against the use of such a book in a government institution was promptly made and the further use of it in the Academy was forbidden.

The inquiry that the incident prompted has disclosed the fact that the proof sheets of the chapter in which the indecent terms were used were submitted to and read by Admiral Sampson, who admits the jest and adds that he made no comment because the language used in the chapter was 'so immoder ate." How much more manly it would have been in Sampson to have expressed disapproval to the author of the abusive and unjustifiable terms. The fact that he did not make such protest leads to the reasonable inference that he was content that a brother officer should be thus publicly outraged.

In the manuscript of the book submitted to Secretary Long the offensive chapter was not among it. He had taken occasion to question if Admiral Schley was not open to criticism upon representations made by Sampson, but although this was known to other officers it was not communicated to Schley, who of all others should have known it. The whole affair shows Sampson in a most unfavorable light, as it illustrates the unusual forbearance of Schley. The latter, however, was at last provoked into demanding a court of inquiry, which, if fairly conducted, is likely to hit other persons besides Sampson and lead to an unsavory and most scandalous exposure of facts, which will be interesting to the public, and perhaps lead to some needed reforms in naval affairs. A 20 30 30 30

DON'T COMMENCE KICKING.

44 TT IS all right, of course, for Secretary Wilson to encourage macaroni growing; such encouragement is what he is paid for. But he may rest assured that he won't make the price any less. As soon as we manufacture enough to make it worth while, a trust will gobble the output, place a high tariff on it and raise the price to where it was before or higher."-Utah State Journal.

Don't be after sousing cold water on what may sometime become one of Utah and Nevada's chief inlustries. When we become producers of macaroni, high prices is what we want, and its about the only way that either State can reap any benefit from a protective tariff. But probably before that time, trusts and Dingley, the twin relics, will have dropped into the past, and Nevada and Utah will dish out macaroni and cheese to the millions at prices that will enable us to live and let live. Wait a litlonger, brother. We may be happy yet.

THE Kentucky Press Association will soon visit Salt Lake City. It is to be hoped that the bluegrass editors have received a hunch about Zion's native valley tan and will bring full flasks along with them. الا الا الا الاي الاي

The Appeal Talks About 4 Few Gleaned Para-Carson River Power.

While Virginia City and Reno are eine supplied with electric power furnished by the Truckee River, Carson is getting along with power from the arson River, which at the present time s hard to figure on as Water When it eaches Empire at this time of year is hard to figure on.

The greatest Water power in this ection of Nevada is at Woodfords, at the head of Carson Valley. There the water comes down Hope Valley Canvon in a torrent, with a fail of at east one thousand feet in the four niles of the creek bed. The supply is always there as no ranches are above hat require the water for irrigation.

Why this great ower has not been arnessed is a mystery. It is absolucely safe and never failing. It has t nished, and by converting it into powr would not interfere with the irriation on the ranches below.

The question of utilizing this great power has been studied by Bob Logar and others who are interested in Como The mines are only about thirty mile from the source of supply, but the old uestion of coin has prevented the utilof the water power at Woodfords Gardnerville lies but twelve or Afteen miles below Woodfords and it is runored that the Valley city is seriously thinking of hitching onto the stream and furnishin electricit both fo power and lights. With this power in troduced along the Carson River, a number of mines an' milling propertie. could be run that are now idle.

The Floriston people have a good nower on the Truckee, but it is not comparison to the power that is runing down Hope Valley Canyon.

There is power enough running over he rocks up the valley to turn ma hinery in every camp within one hunired miles of the starting point. A oreign company will some day secura right up that were and the people wil conder that they overlooked such a
